Annotation: A person feels happy only when he sees the country in which he lives as a mother who provides sustenance and a fountain of life. Otherwise, the human soul will not be able to ignore itself, it will remain indifferent – and indifference means that the soul is dead. It is noteworthy that the decision-making of high morale in our society, where human interests are above all, is one of the most important directions of the policy of our state, and the necessary organizational and legal conditions have been created in this regard.

Keywords: historical traditions, historical justice, education and specialties

That being said, we have achieved such an opportunity thanks to independence. As our president said, independence, independence is a great date that first gave our people freedom and a free life, restored our human honor, national consciousness, dignity, gave us all a sense of self-realization, returned our language, sacred religion, values and traditions, could not be compared with anything in the history of our homeland. Talking about the efforts to further elevate the spirituality of our Ring gives a special pleasure to a man of his own. IN particular, the aspirations aimed at the upbringing of the younger generation can also be said about the results of the plague. In particular, these important directions were clearly outlined in the National Training Program, which was implemented in 1997 at the initiative of our President. Today, spiritual and moral and educational work in our educational institutions is carried out based on rich national cultural and historical traditions, colorful traditions of our people, universal values, which are important in the maturation of our children no less than anyone. During the years of independence, it gives pride to the glorification of our great ancestors, who glorified the unique beauty and wealth of our motherland in their works, who made an enormous contribution to world civilization with their works, discoveries, inventions of an enlightened spiritual orientation. In turn, Samarkand, Bukhara, Khiva, Shakhrisabz, Karshi, Termez, Margilan, as well as our cities anniversaries, which have always been associated with the "Avesto", "Alpomish", Ma'mun Academy were deservedly celebrated. During the years of independence, large-scale work was carried out on the restoration of national values, the veneration of the memory of the unjustly forgotten historical figures, the transformation of the steps of our saints into a magnificent shrine, the decision-making of historical justice. In short, on the way to restore historical heritage and immature young people in the spirit of respect for them, the country where such good and good deeds are carried out is rarely found in the world. There is no doubt that all this is a criterion of high results. It is no secret that today in the world political arena, various currents and movements are raging, alien to our ideology. Therefore, it is imperative and necessary for everyone living on this land to be alert to the motto "The Fate of my homeland is my destiny", relying on our national ideology.

You will be surprised by the scale of the work carried out in the years of independence. In fact, over the 21 years of independence, we have achieved impressive achievements for centuries. It is not difficult to notice this even from the radical changes in the way of life of our people, the image of our cities and villages. But my greatest achievement is our compatriots, the changes that are going on in our worldview, I will not be mistaken if I say. After all, people who put the interests of the Fatherland above their own, who live with the pain of the people, who are busy with good goals are found among us today in large numbers. All this is due to the fact that our citizens have found in them a sense of belonging to the fate of the country, a worthy contribution to the prosperity of the country, a sense of confidence in tomorrow, in their own power. Labor glorifies man "" ... To be selfless every day, every hour, to mobilize oneself tirelessly and tirelessly towards the Great Goals of drop and drop, to turn this quality into a constant daily criterion – this is true heroism," the author's work "high spirituality – invincible strength." In fact, to show dedication every day, to put the interests of the country and the people above their own, to see these creeds as a program is not what everyone can do. To do this, the love of a person for his profession, for his country must be glorified. On the eve of the 21st anniversary of our independence, Mirzakhmat Shaimov, chief engineer of the Open Joint-Stock Company "Sirdarya Thermal Power Station", awarded the title "hero of Uzbekistan" by the decree of our president for his services to the state and the people, long years of selfless work in the field of production in order to strengthen the independence of our country, raise its world-class Representatives of the older generation remember well that in the nineties of the last century, as a result of the policy of the regime in our country, personnel problems in many areas arose. In the early years of independence, this problem became evident, especially in an era when the creation of a unified energy system was struggling to strengthen energy independence. In particular, the population of our state also lacked qualified specialists in the " thermal power plant", which supplies electricity to a large part of the economy's sectors. As a result of the efforts of who served as the head of thermal automatics and measurements of the station, most specialists working in other areas returned to the system, with a certain limit to two to three shifts in a row due to personnel shortages. The dedication of his profession has not stopped with this. He became a direct head-to-head in sorting out talented people with a high interest in the field among young people, training and improving their skills. This not only completely eliminated the issue of personnel deficits that may occur in the future, but also ensured the stable operation, development of the station.

As you know, we had access to the source of information and international databases of various types, the use of which was limited to some extent. As a result, the main focus of professors in higher education was on searching for information, mastering it and distributing it to students after initial processing. That is, teachers were just a subject receiving and transmitting information. In this, the student, as an object of the educational process, performed the task of receiving information, spending his main time listening to lecture classes in the auditorium. And to this day, the issue of developing independent education of students has risen to the agenda, as the enjoyment of the world of information has accelerated, the opportunities to use international scientific and technical databases have expanded, globalization processes have accelerated. Educational Directions and specialties curricula, on the other hand, were supplemented with subjects not bound by the demand of the labor market, mainly from the point of view of the principle of employment of a professor, the exclusion of an audience hour for him, as well as on the basis of the division of subjects in agreement of the heads of the Department. The student was also not allowed to choose subjects and professors, give up on boring activities and read and study in the library. The students were seen as a serious disadvantage, with a warning of more than 30 hours per semester, and going so far as to be removed from the student's ranks if it exceeded 74 hours. The student was obliged to sit in the auditorium, whether he liked this subject and the teacher, whether the knowledge given was left out. So, in the traditional system, no materials were provided on what knowledge the student would acquire in the future, what kind of professors would teach, the orientation profile, the summary of subjects. However, all information about the direction of education and specialties of developed foreign countries at the OSM, in particular, a brief syllabus of subjects reflected in the curriculum (identification of science, information about a professor, lesson description, purpose of Science, Learning Results, teaching methodology, plans of science, literature, assessment methodology), professors and teachers who conduct classes in the cross section of, information related to skills and professional qualifications will be publicly published on the official website of universities.

In conclusion, the transfer of educational institutions to the modern system will help solve the following important problems: to activate the educational process, increase the effectiveness of educational activities, form the skills of a creative approach to the occupation; to expand the scope of Independent Education, to cultivate well-matured specialists. For this reason, we must not forget that at the moment, educators and program developers have come together to create multimedia textbooks from different disciplines, give the expected results to improve the effectiveness of Education.
